CHEFS

Youssef Akiki

Youssef Akiki presents international, local and VIP guests with the same acclaimed cuisine at Burgundy in Beirut, filled with traditional European flavours that are broken up with ingredients from around the world.

Starting his culinary career in the InterContinental hotel in Lebanon's Faraya ski resort, chef Akiki worked his way into becoming a personal chef for an Egyptian business man. Gaining experience with Alain Ducasse and Joël Robuchon, he took a position heading up Beirut's La Posta restaurant and the team of 32 chefs. His secret? "Knowing the client." Youssef is the people's chef. He indulges in chatting to guests and knowing their likes and dislikes, taking feedback on board at every turn.

His menu at Burgundy appeals to more traditional guests with French dishes like frog's legs, while appealing to the more adventurous with vegetable tagliatelle and citrus-infused green apple purée.
